The Western Lines of Scotland routes are the busiest routes in Scotland, running around Glasgow, Edinburgh, Stirling and Dunblane. Covering a total distance of around 570 miles (917 km), the routes are used by an average of about 800 units per day. In addition to regular passenger service, the routes are used for freight services to locations all over Britain. The routes connect cities of heavy industry, such as Glasgow, Stirling, Dundee, and Dundee's Port of Beatson. Even locations like Coronation Street receive freight services! Since 1995, the Scottish Railway has been introducing new Class 37s on to the routes, with an average lifespan of around 10 years each. This poses a problem for the maintenance budget; services are becoming overloaded, and even if maintenance can be afforded, routes continue to become busier. In 2004 the Class 27 diesel locomotive from the BR Green fleet was transferred to the Western Lines of Scotland route. Class 27 in BR Green livery represents the high speed, busy routes which require fast shunting and crew change. Because the Class 27 is a former Iron Horse House model, the Steam Workshop scenarios (including scenarios for the Western Lines of Scotland route) have been updated. There are also the following issues resolved: - Fixed the steam whistle working - Fixed a very short turnaround at Glasgow Central for services to and from Glasgow Central in reality (the scene from Newcastle Central on to the Orange at Glasgow Central was incorrect). - A train on the line to Coronation Street could appear at the Coronation Street platform before it had completely departed from Glasgow Central. - Train movement has been improved at Stirling West Station, with the previous failure to stop at station approach gates corrected. - Fixed the rolling stock orientation in ScotRail's depot at Stirling - Fixed the lack of track presence on the line to Dundee's Port of Beatson - Fixed an error in another depot in Scotland

Key Features:

- 600 miles of new dedicated Steam Workshop content
- Brand new BR Mk1 coaching from around 1980, giving realistic driver views
- Scenarios featuring new locations such as Coronation Street • Glasgow Queen Street, Clyde Ferry, Stirling Central and Stirling East stations
- Passenger coaches in colourful 1970s era BritRail maroon livery
- Livery-based scenarios include Dundee Central, Port of Beatson, Glasgow Central
- Train movements have been improved for Stirling, Dundee, Dunblane,

What's new:

at the airport... just laziness time!! Saturday, December 31, 2008 This is my very first post on this marvellous blog "Beautiful Bots" you may ask where does she come from? She came from M & W's (my in-laws) English garden... tomorrow (for me that is Lazy day) i will share with you how our English garden came to be as it has now become!! Hope your all having a great beginning to the year! In the Cloud of Dust.... Alone we are seized by the fear of insignificance. No-one is there to help us then. Help ourselves - if we can. We owe it to our children. And to that stranger hurtling through the darkness towards us with a powerful message: 'Live life gracefully! Live a life of quality!' If we can do that, no-one will discover us in the midst of our splendid desolation - except our Maker, and when it is too late, He will say: "I told you so." If we can't do it, He alone knows if we have done enough. I don't know my end; I don't know my life's end. I don't even know my life's beginning. And yet, I am agonized with this awareness that I have nothing left to add to the story of myself. Nothing more to do or give. Nothing left to say. I don't feel that my heart will forgive whatever I say and do to the people who come after me. Take arms against a sea of troubles, And by opposing end them. The prince withstood many a siege, And all the wars of fate began and ended in the wars of fate, and he, bereft, retained every joy. And I, in my turn, have borne up like this, even in these years when fortunes did not smile on me, having been made resistant - for how can I say of myself: "Though I pass through the valley, I fear no shadow"? Let me take up arms - fear no shadow! I long for oppression - I cannot live in ease. To crush wrong before they rise, I find only in the struggle for justice my rest. That is why we always know how much we are armed against a sea of troubles - for those who have been bold enough to embark on the seas of a gracious life hardly ever become ship
