Humankind Asset is a Metroid-style 3D platformer that pays homage to the traditional retro classic shoot 'em up genre. Aliens have invaded Earth to strip the planet of its resources, to save their own dying planet. As in all classic shoot 'em ups, only you can save the day - now there's a surprise! With 16 levels, over 400 stages and a multitude of awesome weapons, you must hack, slash and shoot your way to survival and victory. Comments and Discussions Hey dude, I really liked the game and it's really awesome, I liked the background music, it's really intense. Overall, just looking forward to seeing more of your future works! Report game Help us to make improvements or get support if you were in trouble.

First interview: Rand Paul on the trail Sen. Rand Paul, the Kentucky Republican who's running for president, spoke to the Washington Examiner for the first time to explain why he thinks his conservative populism appeals to a larger audience than does the policy-heavy, business-friendly brand of the GOP. The following is a transcript of the interview, conducted Friday in Lexington, Ky.:

Examiner: You're running on a platform that's about a lot of things that conservatives want to hear. Where do you think that, in the primary, that you're going to make the argument that you're a more conservative candidate than a lot of the establishment Republicans?

Paul: I think it has two elements. I think that I'm a more conservative candidate and I think I'm a different candidate. I think most people don't look at political ideologies or the labels and just look at the candidate's track record. I know that most people in this country are not really keen on the government interfering in their lives, and I have not worked to be more ideological. I have tried to be practical. I have tried to make sure that I was good on certain issues, and I think I've had good success, but I don't really believe that because I'm a conservative or I'm a Republican I have to be all the time. When you go to different states, you see that. I visited several states where I think the Democratic Party candidates have done the best among, and their candidates have been the most unified. They've been the most tied to the economic issues. We have not. The big difference is going to be your votes. There

Please be aware that DSP version can be altered. "The hit single, 'DASHING YOU', is taken to the next level in the HITOSHI E. music project featuring the singer Hatsumi Otsuka (Eri Kitamura). Hatsumi Otsuka has sung various roles in dramas, such as HITSUREI LYON in 2005 and in 2006, she has won the title of "Vocalist of the Year." With the VOCALOGRAPH EVOLUTION Vocal Studio series, she has sung the role of a star diva for the first time. The story of the HITOSHI E. project starts with Hatsumi Otsuka's first collaboration with a male vocalist. In this new world where singers are actually their own vocalists, Hatsumi Otsuka is in the character of her vocalists' aspirations. This reality, which can be seen as the animation itself, is a story of deep emotions." I don't know if the voice in this soundtrack is Hatsumi Otsuka or not, but it is certainly her. I think the song is playing in the 'episode 10, the sord'. Then, there is a scene in 'episode 11, when they sing together'. In that scene, when the train is passing the windows of the station, there is a song playing in the background. Even if you don't know the name of that song, you can feel it from the lyrics. The voice is most likely Hatsumi Otsuka's. i love how they updated all those second video games/anime into full length albums..since they aren't playing that much anymore, it's always nice to get some new material to check out while gaming. i'm more into the soundtrack on PS4 myself, but the older soundtrack will always have a place in my heart as well. Pikku - I guess this song wouldn't have been made if we didn't already know what we were going to hear. The lyrics have even been changed to match the voice. Unless they were just making things up randomly, which they'd probably never do. Aoi - I wasn't

181 I had no idea that bad things could happen or that poor decisions could make a terrible situation even worse. I thought that Cori had been kidnapped by her mom for the way she disappeared out the window and reached Hannah's second floor. But that was just the beginning of her nightmare. We all owe so much to the 2 183 survivors. It was going to be a perfect day. Everyone was going to be there. Everyone loved Hannah the way I loved Hannah. To top it all off, her basketball team was going to play me and Hannah's favorite team the furthest away. I guess everyone can have a bad day but I've had more bad days than good days in the past 2 years. Before I left for Homecoming I made sure I said goodbye to everyone and promised that I would be back. I was pretty sure that wasn't the case. It was the second period class when it happened. I had sat next to Hannah at lunch and was actually trying to look at the American Flag with the rest of the class. "Esther, would you turn your backs please and try not to look at the flag." If this was really real it would be the day that I would learn the meaning of absolute fear, but my terror was just beginning. I turned my back and watched as my school played basketball with Hannah's. I could see the basketball courts on the other side of the street, the school we were currently at used to be Hannah's school. I turned around and glanced at the playing basketball but my eyes found Hannah's school and I immediately stood up and ran down the stairs. It was the perfect crime, the school that I walked into had been the one that she was playing in. They wouldn't find her. Not here. Just as I was taking a deep breath to calm myself and start over, my breath was taken away as I saw the look on Hannah's face, the horror, the pain, the confusion. "What is going on? Where is she? Why is she a ghost?" I needed to make sure, her friendship meant everything to me. I needed her to always be safe and I needed her to know that her friends and family loved her. I needed to tell her, but I didn't have the strength. I could only go off the fear, that I was terrified would
